

14,477 Persons Visit Station Farm Here During Past Year

30 Meetings During Year Attract Visitors From 50 Arkansas Counties and Many From Out-of-State

Large numbers of visitors are breaking attendance records at the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture, Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station near Hope. G. W. Ware, assistant director in charge of the station, revealed today that a total of 13,377 visitors have attended 30 meetings at the station this year.

The attendance records show that 50 visitors came from approximately 50 counties of Arkansas and several other states. Of those in attendance, approximately 83 per cent or 12,000 people are white, and the remaining 17 per cent are negroes. Of the white visitors, 5,300 or 44 per cent are students and young people, and the remaining 6,700 are adult men and women.

Because of the great variety of experiments on the station, the average visitor finds that it takes most of the day to inspect the buildings, grounds, experimental fields, and orchards, and participate in the speaking program. Pastures, cotton varieties, cover crops, and orchards attract the men most, while the women are principally interested in landscaping, farm houses, home gardens, and home orchards.

Some of the visitors have attended visiting days regularly since the station was established in 1927, but a majority are present for their first, second, or third time. Interest in the station is increasing rapidly each year as is indicated by the number of those attending the general and special meetings.

The Hope High School Athletic committee also appealed to local fans to ride the train instead of making the trip by automobile. The committee, in chartering the special, guaranteed the railroad $480. The success of the special will determine whether other trains will be chartered in the future.

An expanded program to advertise Arkansas's resources and scenic attractions, was recommended. Describing advertising methods of his company, Mr. Rothert said, "We make good furniture and we don't hesitate to let people throughout the county know about it."

Forest Fires Hit Five-Year Record

Careless Smokers Account for Most of 144 Fires in Woods

Experiencing the worst forest fire season in five years the Arkansas Forestry Commission reports that 144 fires were suppressed in protection Unit Nine during October. This unit includes Lafayette and parts of Ouachita, Columbia, Nevada and Hempstead counties.

According to District Forester Russell Stadelman only 19 of these fires were apparently of an incendiary nature, but instead were mostly a result of careless smokers or hunters who tossed burning cigarettes or matches away while traveling along in a car or walking through the woods.

According to the District Forester the 144 forest fires burned over about 1000 acres, an average fire of about seven acres. To illustrate how these fires originated the District forester listed the causes and the number of fires as follows:

1. Smokers—67 fires.
2. Hunters—23 fires.
3. Incendiary—19 fires.
4. Debris, burning—13 fires.
5. Lightning—11 fires.
6. Campers—6 fires.
7. Railroads—4 fires.
8. Road crews—1 fire.

It can be seen that during extremely dry weather it takes only a spark to ignite the forest floor. Forest Rangers in this area will appreciate the co-operation of the general public, inasmuch as this is necessary to make the protection of forest land in this county 100 per cent effective.

Colonial Plan for Jews Stirs Nazis

Germany Doesn't Want Them Put in Her Former Colonies

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Both Germans and Jews were amazed Monday night at the British plan for Jewish refugees to settle on former German colonial soil—a project to which Germany is strongly opposed. There was even talk that Reichsfuehrer Hitler would summon the Reichstag quickly to protest against allotting former German territory to Jews.

German officials asked about their reaction referred to newspaper comment in the last few days in which the press unanimously said Germany would protest most sharply against any settlement of Jews in her former possessions.

Jewish leaders acclaimed as "wonderful" Chamberlain's statement in London which opened up the prospect of Jewish havens in British Guiana and Africa including Tanganyika, the former German East African colony. Eut, like the Germans, their attention quickly was focused on the problem of German opposition to their settlement on soil which Germany lost in the World war and insists she must have again.

"Won't Hitler be so enraged about Tanganyika that he won't let any Jew out of Germany?" one leader asked.

Another said the Nazis had informed German Jewry that Hitler would not permit any Jews with visas to emigrate to Tanganyika or any other former German possession to leave Germany.

"This probably means new persecution to start with," one Jewish leader said, "but, of course, that sacrifice also must be faced if only in the end we are allotted some place to start life anew."

Their wives were busy with geographies, studying British Guiana, and to the exclamation of one that "Why, that's so hot a climate nobody can live there," another retorted with determination: "Well, Jewish science has advanced to a point where we can make a heaven even of such a reported hell. We'll simply have to show the world what Jewish ingenuity can do."

It was assumed that the first foreigner to bear the brunt of Hitler's exasperation over Chamberlain's announcement would be Oswald Pirow, defense minister of the Union of South Africa, who is to see the fuchrer Thursday at Berchtesgaden.

combat a growing strike movement and assure success for the government's economic program.

Chamber circles said the premier's political strategy centered on the almost certain dispute between Leftist parties and the government when Parliament reconvenes next month to discuss the 1939 budget and the new decree laws. Deputies said the whole plan reflects the premier's announced determination to go "through the end," if necessary, to rebuild France's finances successfully.

They cited strong government control of a wave of small strikes that broke out, apparently to test the new decree law extending the 40-hour week. Swift police action broke up at least two occupation strikes. Four hours after the first strike agitation at the Hutchinson Tire company plant in Puteaux, the factory was cleared and police guards instead of pickets patrolled the grounds.

Police also removed 250 workers from the Saint Gobain chemical plant near Roubaix, in northern France, after employees had occupied the factory in protest against a lengthened work week.

Good Things Come in Big Quantities at Thanksgiving Day Feast

Cranberries must brighten the Thanksgiving banquet. Try them this year in individual fluted tarts garnished with glistening meringue or smooth whipped cream. Of course, there might also be individual pumpkin tarts for dessert, too.

The All-American turkey must be expansive on Thanksgiving Day. That's the custom of our country. The table should groan with marvelous food and the knife and fork must work their way through this traditional bounty.

For example, here's one Thanksgiving menu planned by the chef of a noted and typical American restaurant. Read it, then begin to diet in preparation. You'll need a lot of space.

Fresh pineapple and strawberry cocktail, stuffed celery hearts, queen olives, spiced peaches, essence of tomato soup, Melba toast, lobster Mayonnaise, roast turkey with chestnut stuffing, glazed cranberries, sweet potato and almond rosettes, baked Hubbard squash, creamed fresh mushrooms and asparagus, lemon sherbet, avocado and endive salad with cheese sticks, orange Parker House rolls, gingerbread muffins, pumpkin pie with whipped cream and pecans, bowl of fruit, black coffee, salted nuts and mints.

Chestnut Stuffing

Three cups boiled chestnuts, 1/2 cup butter, 1/4 cup cream, 1 quart cracker crumbs, salt and pepper.

Feel boiled chestnuts and put them through ricer. Add half the butter, then the cream. Melt the remaining butter and mix with the cracker crumbs. Mix all together. Season well with salt and pepper.

Cranberry Mushrooms and Fresh Frozen Asparagus

One-half cup butter, 1/2 cup flour, 2 1/2 cups cream, 3/4 cup milk, 1 quart boiled mushroom caps, salt and pepper, fresh frozen asparagus tips.

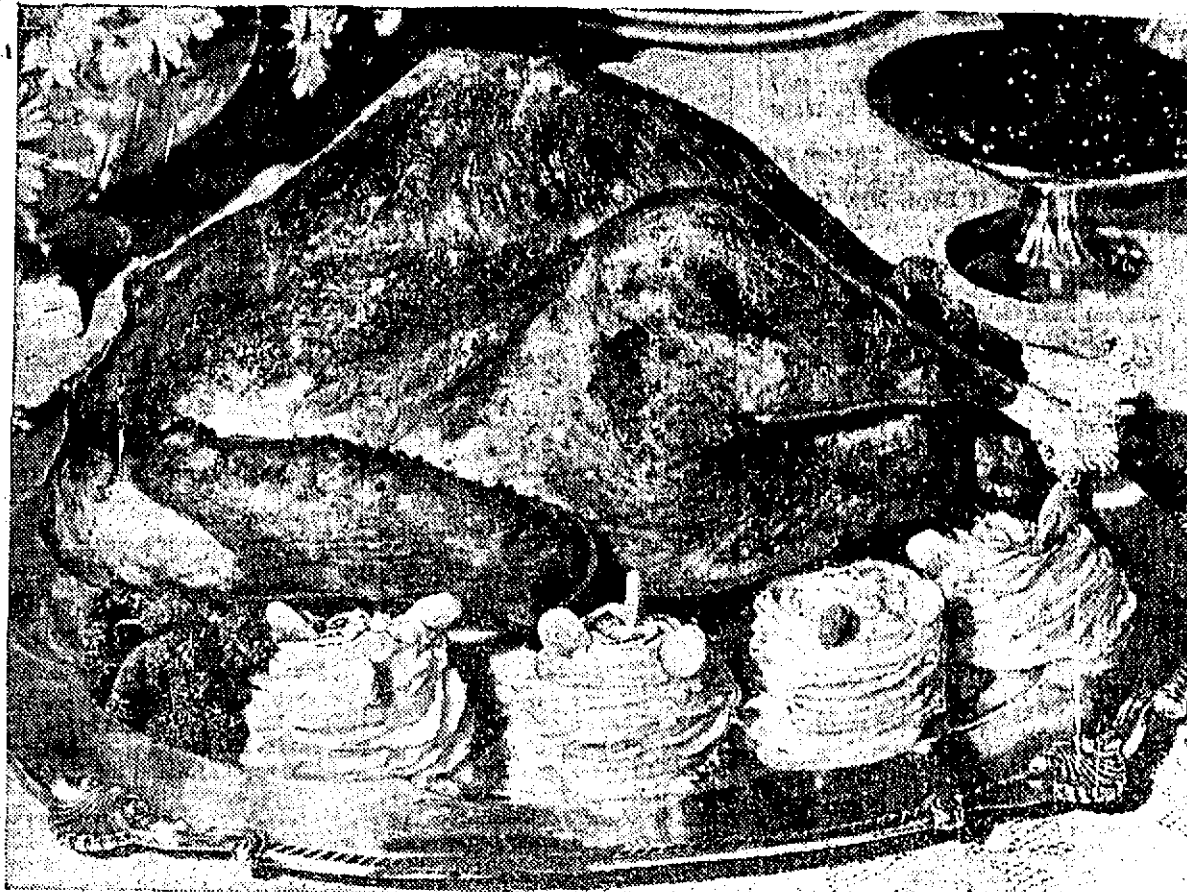

Melt butter. Add flour. Stir until blended. Then add cream and milk, stirring and blending constantly. Cook well. Add the boiled mushroom caps to the sauce. Season with salt and pepper.

To serve: arrange on a platter as many triangular pieces of freshly made toast as there will be servings. Place 6 steamed asparagus tips (cut in 4-inch lengths) on each toast triangle. Pour creamed mushrooms over the center of each serving.

Fluted Cranberry Tarts

Makes 10
Two or three cups (2 cans) sweetened condensed milk, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 2 cups cranberry pulp drained, 4 egg yolks, 10 baked tart shells.

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, cranberry pulp and egg yolks. Pour into baked tart shells.

(Arranged by Schrafft's, New York)

The great American bird makes his lordly entrance for Thanksgiving dinner on a silver platter, wreathed with sweet potato and almond croquettes. Those rosettes are achieved by squeezing fluffy mashed sweet potatoes through a pastry tube into spirals. Top with almonds and brown in oven. The turkey stuffing combines boiled chestnuts, butter, cream and cracker crumbs into perfection.

Garnish with whipped cream.

This pie may also be served with a meringue, made of 4 egg whites beaten stiff and sweetened with 2 tablespoons of granulated sugar, browned in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 10 minutes.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Japanese Secrets in the Record.

It can hardly be news that Japan has prosecuted her Asiatic conquest with as fine a disregard for the elemental principles of humanity as any con-querer ever displayed anywhere. But when chapter and verse are cited—as they are in Amleto Vespa's "Secret Agent of Japan" (Little, Brown $3)—the effect is still profoundly shocking.

Mr. Vespa used to be a secret service agent for Chung Tso-lin. When the Japs conquered Manchoukuo they pressed him into service. After that he was a part of the remorseless machinery by which they undertook to reduce their victims to utter servitude.

Any conquering army may be expected to seize such materials, public buildings and so on as it may need. But it is hard to recall any other which went to the extremes the Japanese seem to have reached. Banditry, kidnapping, commercialized vice of every description, the stimulation of the trade in narcotic drugs—all of these, says Mr. Vespa, were systematically used by the Japanese to extract every possible penny from the Chinese and to—L press! expected destroy every vestige of local independence. Yet even that is not the most startling part of the story. Mr. Vespa describes a military machine that was not merely conscienceless, but somewhat insane as well. The conquerors did not trust each other. The involved grafting, double-crossing, feuding and throat-slitting that took place among different units and factions of the conquering army are nightmarish.

The authenticity of Mr. Vespa's story is vouched for by a number of disinterested Europeans who are in a position to know the facts. Altogether, it makes a rather terrifying disclosure.

SERIAL STORY LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE
COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JUDY ALCOTT—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.

DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.

JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.

MARY ELI—HANS' 16-year-old wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

Yesterday, somehow, with aching hearts, Judy lived through Dwight's wedding, wishes him well, but she wonders if he will be happy with Mary.

CHAPTER XIV

JUDY saw Jack Hanley almost every night. They played monopoly at the Bells' house, although Bill continually complained that if the stakes were seafigs and promotions instead of real estate and railroads, he'd like the game better. They danced at the club, and went to see movies, and dropped in at parties on the station.

Judy was scarcely aware, she told herself firmly, that Dwight Campbell was now Marvel's husband, and away on a honeymoon with her.

Then the Campbells returned. And to everyone's inexcusable surprise, Marvel leased a house close to the station. "I should have thought she'd take the royal suite at the Coronado," said Diane.

"She had that before. Maybe a house is a change."

"But such a house! Actually, it's small!"

The Navy was soon to be underelevated about Marvel's house. Small it might be, but she was bent on making it perfect. Things arrived from exclusive shops in Los Angeles and San Francisco. There was whispering of antiques, of an interior decorator, of amazingly intricate glass curtains, drapes and overdrapes.

Judy tried not to be curious, not to want to see Dwight. And then the invitation came. A housewarming. Judy turned it over in her fingers. Marvel should have called, as a new bride, on the admiral and Captain Lane and then in order on each of the wives of the officers next in rank. But Marvel was doing this her own way.

Judy thought of the meticulous Navy gradings. The numbers that even in officers of the same rank determined once and forever who talked on whom first on arriving at a new station. Who took command in a group, who sat nearest the head of the table, even though all were of the same rank. This might seem ridiculous to people on the outside. Probably it seemed ridiculous to Marvel, if she so much as knew of it, which Judy doubted. But there were good and sufficient reasons for the law. As a matter of fact, Jack Hanley, who had graduated second in his class at the Academy, outranked Dwight.

It was a pity that Marvel should begin at once to flaunt tradition and custom. Dwight had been careful about making his way from the first. He had accepted sage advice, done duty on a battleship as soon as he graduated. He had requested transfer to a destroyer at the end of his three years, and for his first shore duty chosen postgraduate work at the Academy. Now he was on the Texarkana, and his career was set. If he didn't get passed over. But he wouldn't. At least, until he married Marvel, there had been no danger.

Jack's career had not been so cut and dried. His choice of flying, his success in it, removed him from the groove. And now his faith in dirigibles, his desire to get back to them, was setting him still further apart. But he was a good officer, a skillful flyer.

Her mother came in and found her still with the card in her fingers. Mrs. Alcott did not comment about the calls Marvel hadn't made. She only said, "I doubt if I shall attend her housewarming. But go, if you like."

"Like!" said Judy.

"I expect the new house is very beautiful."

"I am curious," Judy admitted. At that, she might not have gone if Dwight hadn't come to see her one evening. He explained that Marvel was tied up in a beauty salon downtown. "I stopped by on my way home, but she said she'd be hours. I've wanted to talk to you, Judy."

The pulse in her wrists was leaping, but she managed to speak to him coolly and matter-of-factly. "You're looking well, Dwight. I know you must be very happy."

"Happy!" His eyes shone. Then his brow clouded. "You got a bid to the housewarming. I know. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."

"Yes?"

He floundered. He said at last, "Marvel—well—she doesn't like me to tell her what to do. She's proud, and she's had so much social experience. But of course, it isn't Navy—she doesn't understand—" His eyes besought her.

"Look here, Judy, I know I've got a colossal nerve, but I wish you'd hint to Marvel that we—well—she ought to call around—you know what I mean. I'm afraid the brass hats are going to think she's got a healthy courage, asking them to her house first."

JUDY said slowly, "I don't see how I can tell Marvel anything. It's her own business. And she—you'll pardon me, Dwight, but—I don't think she likes me very well."

"Nonsense! Of course she likes you! She's headstrong, used to her own way. I guess 'm a blundering ass sometimes and she doesn't want anyone laying down the law to her. If there were some older woman—your mother, maybe."

Judy looked back at him levelly. "Mother would never dream of it, Dwight. I couldn't ask her." He flushed. He looked uncomfortable. "I guess I'm making a bigger mess of this than it was to begin with. But curse it all, you and I were such good friends, and I had more or less depended on you to—" That was the climber in Dwight, her mind told her.

She said, "You know I tried. You know I wasn't successful. Listen, she's not a baby, and she's no fool, either. She'll get on to it. People will forgive her first few mistakes after a while."

His brow furrowed. "I hate having her get off on the wrong foot and maybe never fitting in." "That's a matter of temperament, isn't it?" And Marvel's nature was to scintillate. To be the Queen Bee. There were no Queen Bees in the Navy. Just admirals' wives, and by the time they got to be the wife of an admiral, they had learned much hard common sense.

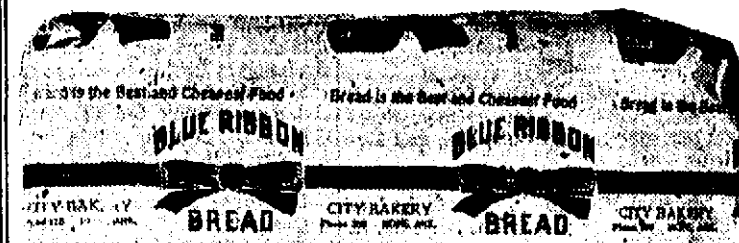

He leaned forward. "Judy, you and I don't have to stand on ceremony. We were such good friends! You know I think the world of you. Don't let me down now! It's a delicate problem, nothing a man can handle. Promise me you'll speak to Marvel. Can't you strike up one of these beautiful friendships women are always getting into? You pop around a lot with Diane Bell. Why can't you let Marvel in on the combination? In between recipes and bridge games, she'd learn a lot."

Judy suppressed a smile. "Marvel's not quite the type for recipes and bridge games, Dwight." But then, looking at him, feeling again the ache of loss, she softened. She was a triple-starred, stupid fool, but she couldn't keep herself from saying, "All right, Dwight. I'll do my best. I'll try to talk to her. I promise."

South's Power Is Well-Balanced as Eleven Schools Make Honor Team

By BOB WILSON
NEA Service Special Correspondent

A consensus gives no school more than one player on the 1938 All-South football team... indicating the even distribution of strength.

Personally, I'd like to see two other Tennessee athletes on the first squad. It's a pity to have to relegate a guard like Bob Suffridge and an end of Bowden Wyatt's caliber to the second squad, but all sections had to be heard from, and the accompanying three clubs are the result of the final ballot.

Dixie's first-string "All" backs are Vic Bradford of Alabama, Warren Brunner of Tulane, George Cafego of Tennessee, and Parker Hall of Mississippi. They are of good size, start quickly, and are fast, shifty, hard drivers, and play excellent ball defensively.

Bradford is the spark of the Alabama outfit.

Brunner, Cafego, and Hall are truly great running backs. Brunner is especially good at cutting back over tackle. Hall is one of the finest passers in the country.

Won Games By Their Individual Brilliance

Cafego and Hall won games by their individual brilliance. Cafego's ground game against Alabama alone qualified him for any team... including All-American.

Hall upset Louisiana State with long passes, and passed successfully against every opponent of Ole Miss.

Dixie's first "All" ends are Kenneth Kavanaugh of Louisiana State and Goins of Clemson.

Kavanaugh, a six-foot-three, 203-pound junior of Little Rock, was a unanimous choice. No aggregation took liberties around the speedy 190-pound Goins' flank.

Tackle posts go to Ed (Ty) Coon of North Carolina State and Holdgraf of Vanderbilt.

Coon was the pace-setter of the Wolfpack forward wall. Alabama players Watertown, Conn., boy on his play against them. Holdgraf, a fast charger, was invaluable to the Commodores week in and week out. Coon and Holdgraf are fighters who can block and tackle.

Milton Howell of Auburn and Steve Maronic of North Carolina draw the guard posts. Pillars on defense and big, agile chaps who can pull out of the line to run interference, they would be capable of making key blocks for any team in the country. They tackle hard and can play 60 minutes if necessary.

Maronic, the Tar Heels' co-captain, plays tackle. He is an expert place-kicker, having made 12 points in as many attempts this season.

Wade calls Duke Center Best Player in South

Wallace Wade, Duke's veteran coach, will tell you that Dan (Tiger) Hill, his center, and the backs, Bob O'Mara and Eric Tipton, carried Duke University to its perfect season to date.

Wade considers Hill the finest football player below the Mason-Dixon line. Coaches of both southern conferences recommend the 21-year-old snapper-back highly.

Hill does it all. He even ends plays. O'Mara, the workhorse of the Duke backfield, is on the second team only

In Dixie Land They Take Their Stand

Position	First Team	Second Team	Third Team
End	Kavanaugh, Louisiana State	Wenzel, Tulane	Craig, South Carolina
Tackle	Coon, North Carolina State	Gatto, Louisiana State	Russell, Auburn
Guard	Maronic, North Carolina	Burns, Auburn	Trunzo, Wake Forest
Center	Hill, Duke	Kinkebein, Kentucky	Lumpkin, Georgia
Guard	Howell, Auburn	Suffridge, Tennessee	Kocsis, Florida
Tackle	Holdgraf, Vanderbilt	Davis, Alabama	Wood, Georgia Tech
End	Goins, Clemson	Wyatt, Tennessee	Franklin, Vanderbilt
Back	Bradford, Alabama	Smith, Southwestern	Wood, Tennessee
Back	Brunner, Tulane	Bryant, Clemson	Ruoney, North Car. State
Back	Hall, Mississippi	Tipton, Duke	Kelley, Auburn
Back	Cafego, Tennessee	O'Mara, Duke	Holm, Alabama

because there are only four first-string backfield positions on the first. Injuries were all that kept Tipton from winning a higher place. Gaylon Smith of Southwestern of Memphis perhaps is the equal of any of the first-stringers at everything except kicking. He is a driving back coming in at 215 pounds, and the nation's leading scorer.

But, we repeat, the injustice of these "All" teams is that there are not enough places to go around.

Porkers to Be in Shape for Tulsa

Razorbacks Expect Win—Thomsen Says Team Is Tough

FAYETTEVILLE—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks opened workouts Monday for what they hope will be a winning climax to a losing season when they engage the Tulsa University Golden Hurricane at Tulsa Thursday. Despite the Porkers' record of two won and seven lost, the game will be witnessed by a capacity crowd.

Thanks to their game last Wednesday with Mississippi University, both the team and Coach Fred C. Thomsen had a layoff over the week-end, although Thomsen took advantage of the respite to scout the Golden Hurricane in its 39-14 loss to Detroit University. Thomsen's report was by no means optimistic.

Says Tulsa's Tough

"We'll have a tough time beating them," he warned. "They've got a good ball team. In fact, they held the upper hand on Detroit until the final quarter when a blocked punt led to a touchdown. After that they seemed to fold up."

Thomsen divided drill between offense and defense.

The varied offense of Coach Vic Hurt, described by Thomsen as mainly run from a "T" formation, is expected to give the Razorbacks plenty of trouble.

Physically the Porkers will be in good shape for the Hurricane, with the exception of Kay Eskin, disabled in the Rice game by a broken collarbone. W. B. Owen and Estes McDaniel, out for several weeks with injuries, may be able to see some action in the season's finale.

Two Fayetteville boys, Othel Turner at tackle and Herbert Collins at halfback, will oppose the Razorbacks in the Tulsa line-up.

TCU Denies Rumors of Fresh Bowl Talk

Frogs Won't Talk About Post-Season Game Until SMU Tilt

FORT WORTH, Texas.—(AP)—You could get all the bowl talk you wanted Monday night in the Southwest for a slick nickel, but all worthy any more than that was a species reiteration from Texas Christian athletic authorities they have not committed themselves.

"Reports we will play in the Cotton Bowl," said Howard Grubbs, director of athletics, "are pure fiction." He was commenting on a fresh rumor that the Horned Frogs favored an invitation to the annual classic in the Southwest, the Cotton Bowl game.

The Frogs, undefeated and untied thus far in a season in which they have not been forced yet to turn on the power to defeat any one of nine fair-to-strong opponents, are just not ready to talk about Rose Bowl, Cotton Bowl or any other bowl until they knock off their next opponent. Here, there and yonder you will find people who feel Southern Methodist, with a young but fast-seasoning team, has a chance to do some knocking over of their own at Dallas Saturday afternoon when they meet the Frogs in the latter's last game of the regular season.

The Methodists did not overwhelm Baylor at Waco last week as the Frogs did earlier, but they showed a constantly-improving air attack that may keep them in the game all the way against the Christians. Matty Bell, quarterback, defeated the Bruins and Bullet Bill Patterson 21-6, using quite a few reserves but also getting some nice breaks in the form of Baylor miscues near pay dirt.

Elliott Roosevelt, son of the president, came into the Cotton Bowl picture unofficially Monday with a proposal, quickly accepted by the game's sponsors, to invite his father to what is now suggested as a double-barrel game, one Saturday December 31 and the other Monday, January 2.

In the first, said J. Curtis Sanford, game director, he would like to see unbeaten Texas Tech representing the Southwest, and in the other, Texas Christian. Naturally, he said, announcing that Monday way the day ticket-sales-by-mail started, neither team has accepted nor is it final who the opponents might be if they did.

Meanwhile, the Methodical Horned Frogs and their methodical coach, Leo Meyer, settled down for a good hard week of practice, planning to let themselves go against Southern Methodist.

WINNING PLAYS OF 1938

Yerger Team Will Play on Thursday

Will Meet Augusta Bearcats at 2:30 o'Clock on Yerger Field

The Yerger negro High School football team will play the Augusta Bearcats Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Yerger field.

The Bearcats were barely nosed out, 7 to 6, by the Pine Bluff Lions, a team that defeated Hope last week, 25 to 13. The Yerger team is expected to be in good physical condition.

Notre Dame shook Louis Zontini loose on an 84-yard run after six minutes of play for the first of its three touchdowns against Minnesota at Notre Dame. It was the old cutback play inside tackle.

Steve Sitko, quarterback, and Johnny Thesing, fullback, went ahead of Zontini through the hole ripped in the Minnesota right side. Sitko took out the right backer-up, and Thesing looked after Wilbur Moore, the right secondary.

By the time Van Every finished sparring with Longhi and Kell, there was no chance of his overtaking Zontini.

To The Citizens And Voters Of The City Of Hope, Arkansas

Since announcing my candidacy for the office of Mayor, I have had serious illness in my family, which has kept me from making a personal house-to-house campaign, and explaining to each and every voter the importance of carefully selecting the next Mayor of our City. Therefore, I take this opportunity to state my position on the more important matters involved.

As your Mayor I shall endeavor to see that the City co-operates and does its part to secure work projects and W.P.A. funds for the City.

We need more highways in Hope and its trade territory; and as your Mayor I shall use my best efforts to secure more and better highways for Hope and its trade territory.

I shall oppose any and every move, or attempted move, to SELL, LEASE, OR OTHERWISE DISPOSE OF OUR MUNICIPAL WATER AND LIGHT PLANT. Every patriotic citizen of Hope should have this same attitude toward our water and light plant.

I have made no promises to anyone about any appointment or recommendation as to any job, position or office, and will not do so until after I am elected.

As your Mayor I will bring to the office the experience I have gained, and will devote the proper time and energy to the duties of the office to make Hope the finest and best City of Southwest Arkansas.

I Will Appreciate Your Vote and Support

"Character" Largely A Matter of Stamina Under Life's Blows

"Mother, when do girls grow up?" asked Dorothy.

"We're getting introspective, after all, aren't we? You ought to know what character means."

The minute I think I have no character, I begin fishing around for some reason to excuse myself. I think psychology do that. It gives people reasons for everything. I want to know what grandma and grandpa called character before all this science was talked about. And what they thought about people growing up. They used to let their children do all sorts of things we aren't allowed to do now. I mean dangerous things. Did that make character?"

Mrs. Smith thought for awhile. "If I knew that much, I would copy them, my dear. But they had a simple world compared to ours today. It has gotten so complex that parents scarcely know the difference between safety and danger. We want to develop you through a certain amount of experience and at the same time we fear to let you loose. We keep you 'children' as long as we can, just because we are confused."

"But you want to know about character. In school maybe you call it sportsmanship. But that isn't quite enough. I think it means working till you're ready to drop and then going right on and working some more. It's strange how much punishment our bodies will stand if we don't begin to 'feel' a lot of things. It means doing without and without and then without some more. And whistling while you're wanting. Oh, dear, it would take me until next Christmas to give you a receipt for character."

Can Be Human, Through Spartan

"Go on. I like it in words not in the text books."

"It means then, when you have a pain to keep your mouth shut. And it certainly means that you've got to bear your troubles alone. The person always hunting sympathy and understanding hasn't any character. Not a bit. Character means enduring alone."

"It sounds sort of Spartan. No one is that way."

"I'm giving it to you straight, darling. Character is not a compromise."

"But people have feelings. They're human, not pieces of stone."

"Yes. But they can have character and still be human. Their softer side should be developed by thought for others and not for self. They are grown up when they have about three-fourths of the ingredients I have been talking about."

"Mother, I guess I'm pretty young. Watch me grow up in a hurry, now."

LET US GIVE THANKS

"... and by any of these accountings, we have abundant reason to return devout and heartfelt thanks" ... resident of the home provided for the indigent by Little Sisters of the Poor at Cleveland.

By BRUCE CATTON

This ought to be a good Thanksgiving Day.

First of all, the season has been bountiful. The yield of our farms has been good, trade and industry seem to be picking up speed again, and most Americans will be able to sit down to a big dinner commemorating those facts.

But Thanksgiving has come to be more than just a seasonal feast. It has become a time for casting up our national accounts so we can see how we have fared during the last 12 months; a time for looking both to the past and to the future, and for assessing our own place in the general picture of the world.

And by any of those accountings, we have abundant reason to return devout and heartfelt thanks.

The last eight or nine years have not been easy. They have put our country, probably, to a greater strain than it has suffered since 1865; yet it has stood the strain nobly, and now it is becoming pretty evident that the worst is over.

A great many people have suffered rather severely, but the nation as a whole received no permanent damage—and the signs now are that things are going to go on getting better during the coming year.

If you look overseas, the reason for thanksgiving in America is even clearer.

In Europe and Asia bloody wars are raging; and millions of people have to live under the daily dread that tomorrow it will be their turn. Intolerance and persecution recall the Dark Ages.

From all of that, we are spared. Alone of the earth's great nations, we can look forward confidently to years of peace—years which we can devote to construction, not to destruction, years which should increase the sum total of human happiness instead of decreasing it.

Truly, if ever a land had reason to return thanks, it is our land!

Two Gag Men With Bear Grease Jokes Muff Up an Afternoon's Work

HOLLYWOOD.—This is Don Hartman, said the press agent, introducing a short, cheerful-looking man. "And this"—indicating tall, sad-looking fellow—"is Frank Butler. Comedy-writing team. The best, absolutely. They wrote 'Paris Honeymoon,' the Bing Crosby picture I'm working on. Say, maybe you guys would tell him about how you wrote 'Paris Honeymoon'."

"Sure," said Butler. "We've got nothing to do. Nothing, that is, except write another comedy. You know, the main difference between a comedy writer and a dramatic writer is clothes. The dramatic writer wears a double-breasted blue serge suit and the comedy writer's outfit looks like something by Walt Disney. The reason—"

"The idea is," broke in Hartman, "that the dray-man gent is supposed to look serious and dignified in a story conference while the comedy guy has to get laughs. When a scene falls flat as he reads it aloud to the boss, he can always get a laugh out of his get-up. It's a form of job insurance."

"When you were writing 'Paris Honeymoon,'" suggested the press agent, "I suppose you—"

Comedy Must Stay Funny

"Of course, the big headache," interrupted Butler, "is how to be funny. Remember that a screen writer is supposed to get his stuff actually on the screen. Before this happens, a line or situation has to seem funny to a producer, his secretary, office boy, chauffeur, wife, cook and gardener. If it doesn't, it's out! Now a scene that might seem hilarious to a producer on Monday may fall flat as curbstone chewing gum on Tuesday if his eggs happened to be cold at breakfast. Dozens of our funniest scenes get tossed into yawning wastebaskets and—"

"I might mention," said Hartman, "that the wastebaskets always are yawning before our scenes reach them. As a matter of fact, the cleaning women and janitors here at Paramount are our best audience. And only last week a man at the city dump telephoned and asked how soon he could expect some more of our stuff. He said he and the boys were dying over it!"

"In 'Paris Honeymoon,'" broke in the press agent, rather desperately, "you—"

A Catalog of Laughs

"In case you are interested in the different kinds of laughs," said Butler, ignoring the appeal, "there are the snicker, the giggle, the chuckle, the guffaw or belly-laugh, and the paroxysm in which you are carried out of the theater and revived by a pulmonologist. We have never actually seen this last one occur, but rival comedy writers tell us it happens on their pictures regularly."

Laughed First at Bear Grease

"The first laugh in history," explained Hartman, "was when a cave-chuckle. But it's a guffaw if the clerk accidentally trips the tough employer."

"Couldn't you illustrate those different laughs with situations in 'Paris Honeymoon'?" the press agent pleaded.
